FINISHED PIGS

Before you start

Stand back and have a good look from a distance at the group. Get a general impression of the pigs to judge general appearance and type. Pay close attention to distinguishing marks and face.

Remember: you are looking for a 'brick on legs' capable of producing top quality meat for the consumer which will provide a profit for the butcher. Pay more attention to the most expensive cuts (ie ham and loin) with less attention to the 'cheap cuts' (ie shoulder and neck).

Overall, look for a pig that is well balanced and appears healthy.
